

Australian National University

FRED FISK: ANU'S FIRST DEVELOPMENT ECONOMIST

A BOOK LAUNCH

MONDAY, 14 APRIL
HEDLEY BULL FOYER, 5PM

Foreword by Stephen Howes

Edward Kelvin Fisk

PIONEER DEVELOPMENT ECONOMIST OF THE AUSTRALIAN NATIONAL UNIVERSITY

by John D Conroy

In 1960, John Crawford hired Fred Fisk, then working in Malaysia, to the ANU. Fisk's subsequent work on subsistence affluence, first in PNG and then in Fiji and other Pacific island economies, had a deep and lasting impact both in the regions, and internationally.

JOHN CONROY Economist and development practitioner

JANE GOLLEY
Professor and Head of Arndt-Corden Department of Economics, ANU

HAL HILL
Emeritus Professor, ANU

A new book Edward Kelvin Fisk: Pioneer development economist of The Australian National University by Dr John Conroy who has worked for extended periods in both PNG and Indonesia, propounds for a new generation the work of Fred Fisk, bringing to life its theoretical foundations, its numerous applications and its cross-disciplinary linkages.

Join us on Monday April 14 at 5pm the Hedley Building Foyer for the launch of John Conroy's book by Professor Emeritus Hal Hill and Professor Jane Golley

HOSTED BY Development Policy Centre, devpolicy@anu.edu.au